This was judged by our resident experts to be an extraordinary accomplishment in Information Technology and Services.

Forbes Business Development Council is an invitation-only organization for leading executives in the sales and business development sector. Forbes Councils is a professional community for top leaders that proactively connects them to each other as well as best-in-class resources based on their specific business needs. Leaders in the business development sector now have a place to discuss pressing business challenges with peers and share insights via thought leadership articles on Forbes.com.

Membership in Forbes Business Development Council is highly sought-after, and admission is limited to the highest-quality members of the business development community. Each applicant is thoroughly reviewed and vetted before being invited. While admit rates can vary slightly over the course of a year, generally, our acceptance rate for Forbes Councils is at around 10-11%, meaning roughly only one out of 10 of those considered meet the standards for admission. The minimum criteria for admission are listed below.

Must be a senior-level sales or business development executive with a successful company that:

- Has at least $1M in annual revenue and/or
- Has at least $1M in financing

However, as specified on our website, meeting the criteria listed above does not result in admission by itself. Prospective members are also asked to demonstrate that they have made tangible outstanding accomplishments in their field that set them above their peers. Each application is reviewed by a selection committee composed of experts in business development, sales, and entrepreneurship.

Sidharth Ramsinghaney was invited to join Forbes Business Development Council because, in addition to meeting the minimum requirements for membership, he has a record of outstanding achievement in Information Technology and Services. This accomplishment places Sidharth Ramsinghaney in the top echelon of business development or sales professionals and thus, warranted an invitation to join this prestigious council.

If there are any questions with respect to Sidharth Ramsinghaney's membership, please do not hesitate to contact us.

Sincerely,

Ryan Paugh,
Co-Founder and COO
